When the robot is red, the cars must stop. When it is green, you can go. Traffic cop will catch you if you don't follow the rules
03 May 17:35	10	Game : Giant's Footsteps		<ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. A person starts out as the Giant and stands at the end of a field. Everyone else playing stands at the far end (distance depends upon playing area selected). The object of the game is for a Cub to tag the Giant thereby becoming the Giant and resetting the game. 2. The Giant turns their back to the field, and the Cubs attempt to race across and tag the Giant. 3. Whenever the Giant turns around, the Cubs must freeze in position and hold that for as long as the Giant looks at them. The Giant can even walk around the Cubs, examining them. However, the Giant needs to be careful – whenever his back is turned, Cubs are free to move. 4. If a Cub is caught moving, they are sent back to the starting line to begin again (or thrown out of that round, whichever way is preferred.). 	Akela
Imagine you could make your own car. What would you add?
03 May 17:45	20	Crafts : Junk Craft Car	Various junk materials from our stores, glue, lids and other craft items.	Using the materials provided, each team needs to build a car. It can be a model (doesn't move) or it can have turning wheels. You can add anything to your car that you like - it doesn't have to be like a car on the road - use your imagination.	Akela
Being aware of your surroundings is important as a driver. Kim learnt observation in order to be a spy but we can learn the same things.
03 May 18:05	5	Yarn : The Story of Kim		See attached	Akela
Let's have some juice and biscuits while we learn about Kim
03 May 18:10	5	Activities : Juice and biscuits		Juice and biscuit break	Akela
Let's try a game like Kim. Can you tell what is missing from the table?
03 May 18:15	10	Game : What's missing?		Gather several small items. Show the items to the Cubs and have them look carefully look at the tray and take note of what's there. Then have them close their eyes while you remove an object or two. They have to figure out which object has been removed.	Akela
Let's race in teams - it's a relay so everyone needs to take turns pushing and steering.
03 May 18:25	15	Game : Soap box races		Using the soap box cars, have a relay race in the two Sixes.	Akela

				One cub starts in the car and another pushes. When they reach the other end, they swop around and race back. The next pair then goes.
As part of our National challenge, we are making thankful for you cards
03 May 18:40	15	Crafts : Thankful for You Cards	Card, coloured paper, paints, crayons	Cubs to make cards with the wording "I'm thankful for you". Inside the card, they need to write a message to someone special - a family member, teacher or friend - that they are thankful for (and say why). They can decorate the message however they want. We sometimes forget to thank the people in our lives or be thankful for what we have. When they give out the cards, they should notice how much joy it gives the other person to be recognised and appreciated.	Akela

The Story of Kim

Kim is the main character in the novel Kim by Rudyard Kipling. This is the story of some of his adventures.

Kim, or to give him his full name, Kimball O'Hara, was the son of a sergeant in an Irish regiment in India. His father and mother died while he was a child and he was left to the care of an aunt. His playmates were all Indian boys, so he learned to talk their language and to know their ways. He became great friends with an old wandering priest and travelled with him all over northern India. One day he chanced to meet his father's old regiment on the march, but in visiting the camp he was arrested on suspicion of being a thief. His birth certificate and other papers were found on him and the regiment, seeing that he had belonged to them, took charge of him and started to educate him. But, whenever he could get away for holidays, Kim dressed himself in Indian clothes and went among the natives as one of them.

After some time, Kim became acquainted with a Mr. Lurgan, a dealer in old jewellery and curiosities, who was also a member of the Government Intelligence Department. This man realised that Kim had such special knowledge of local habits and customs, and saw that he could make a useful agent for Government Intelligence work. He therefore gave Kim lessons at noticing and remembering small details, which is an important point in the training of a Scout.

Kim's Training

Lurgan began by showing Kim a tray full of different kinds of precious stones. He let him look at it for a minute, then covered it with a cloth, and asked him to state how many stones and what sorts were there. At first Kim could only remember a few and could not describe them very accurately, but with a little practice he soon was able to remember all of them quite well. And the same applied for many other kinds of articles which were shown to him in the same way. In Scouting, this sort of memory game is called Kim's Game.

Story

At last, after much other training, Kim was made a member of the Secret Service and was given a secret sign, namely, a locket or badge to wear around his neck and a certain sentence, which, if said in a special way, meant he was one of the Service.

Kim in Secret Service

Once when Kim was travelling in the train he met a man who was rather badly cut about the head and arms. He explained to the other passengers that he had fallen from a cart when driving to the station. But Kim, like a good Scout, noticed that the cuts were sharp and not grazes such as you would get by falling from a cart, and so Kim did not believe him. While the man was tying a bandage over his head, Kim noticed that he was wearing a locket like his own, so Kim showed him his. Immediately the man brought into the conversation some of the secret words, and Kim answered with the proper ones in reply. Then the stranger got into a corner with Kim and explained to him that he was carrying out Secret Service work and had been found out. He was being hunted by some enemies who had nearly killed him. They probably knew he was in the train and would therefore telegraph down the line to their friends that he was coming. He wanted to get his message to a certain police officer without being caught by the enemy, but he did not know how to do it if they were already warned of his coming.

Kim hit upon the solution. In India there are a number of holy beggars who travel around the country. They are considered very holy and people always help them with food and money. They wear next to no clothing, smear themselves with ashes and paint certain marks on their faces. So Kim set about disguising the man as a beggar. He made a mixture of flour and ashes, which he took from the bowl of a pipe. He undressed his friend and smeared the mixture all over him. He also smeared the man's wounds so that they did not show. Finally, with the aid of a little paint-box he carried, he painted the proper face marks on the man's forehead, brushed his hair down to look wild and shaggy like that of a beggar and covered it with dust, so that the man's own mother would not have known him.

Soon afterwards they arrived at a big station. Here, on the platform they found the police officer to whom the report was to be made. The imitation beggar pushed up against the officer and got scolded by him in English. The beggar replied with a string of abuse into which he mixed the secret words. The police officer at once realised from the secret words that this beggar was an agent. He pretended to arrest him and marched him off to the police station where he could talk to him quietly and receive his report.
